November 2nd—5th

Monday, November 2nd

Financing the Adventure

Join us for an informative discussion about scholarships, fellowships, graduate assistantships, and other creative ways you can make your graduate school dreams come true.

Tuesday, November 3rd

Sowing the Seeds for Success in Graduate School

Join Dr. Mark Welker of Wake Forest University and George McCormick, A&T Graduate School Recruiter, as they discuss how to build positive mentoring relationships in graduate school and share what admissions officers are looking for in graduate school applicants.

Wednesday, November 4th

Standing Out: Writing Powerful Graduate School Admissions Essays and Personal Statements

Join Karen Favreau, Academic Program Coordinator with the A&T Honors Program, for a “crash course” on how to begin the task of putting your life, your hopes, and your dreams on paper and making your statement stand out from the rest.

Thursday, November 5th

Grad School Confidential: What's It Really Like?

A panel of current graduate students from various disciplines (Medical School, Counseling, Computer Science, Chemistry and more) share challenges, success stories, and personal reflections about their respective graduate school journeys.

All programs located in Bluford Library

(Room 258) from 7:00 to 8:00 PM

For more information, contact Karen Favreau in the Honors Program at 285-2030 or kfavreau@uncg
