

Dear Aggie Family,

We are excited to welcome you back home to North Carolina A&T State University later this month for the “Greatest Homecoming on Earth.” As we continue to prepare the campus for celebration, we have shared with you a memorandum and a set of frequently asked questions that detail enhancements we will make to accommodate the growing attendance of the celebration in the Greek plot area.

Since the information was shared on Oct. 1, we have received emails, calls and messages via our social media channels from alumni and students with varying perspectives that range from gratitude for and support of the changes, to those who believe that a deliberate effort to enhance your safety is a targeted attempt to eliminate tradition. Prior to and throughout the process of creating these enhancements to the Greek plot area, the university’s priority has been and continues to be the safety of the entire Aggie family and our many guests who celebrate in the Greek plot area.

To maintain the rich tradition of gathering at the plots, various constituents including, but not limited to, Greek affiliated students, alumni and staff as well as advisors, faculty and the University Police were a part of this process.

While we appreciate your feedback, we are, unfortunately, unable to respond to individual inquiries and suggestions. We will, however, take your feedback into consideration as we continue to enhance the entire homecoming experience for 2016 and beyond.

As we move forward with our plans for these enhancements, we ask that you share this information as well as the memorandum and the frequently asked questions with your fellow alumni. We look forward to seeing each of you on campus for homecoming and to your safe return to your respective destinations.

With Aggie Pride,

North Carolina A&T State University Administration
