MSCM's Supply Chain Management Program offers a Minor in Supply Chain Management (18 Cr hours)

The minor in Supply Chain Management is offered to any student completing the courses of study listed below. Supply chain management is a discipline that is needed, to some degree, by virtually every organization. The minor offers the basic knowledge and understanding of supply chain management to seek employment opportunities with a supporting skill set for supply chain operations.

The SCM Minor course sequence is a strong complement to all business majors, as well as industrial engineering and agricultural science, to name a few.

The SCM Minor provides students with basic knowledge of supply chain management, such as distribution strategies, planning, and procurement, while also working on students' communication, negotiation, and leadership abilities.
